The young men of Bowling Green who endeavored to entire several of the young lady boarders at the College in that city from the institution, and when discovered by the President fired at him with revolvers, are said to be high up in Bowling dreen "society." ere, and will allow the law to take its ourse.

There is a great deal about this present day "acciety" boeh that is nausetting to the average honest and law-shding citizes. It has come pretty near to the point where the only thing necessary to gain admission into "suciety" is for a young man to be the fortunate possessor of wealthy parents. His morals seem to cut no figure; indeed, he is not recognized in "high society" until he has been the heroft? I have all the present of the young. How will the parents of the young a ladder at midnight from the College window to meet these young men who what Ashaloma is mattine to take them.

a ladder at midnight from the Colleg-window to meet these young men who had charlages in waiting to take them had charlages in waiting to take them of the College if the assailants of their daughters are allowed to go unpun-ished because they are members of 'society?' The intentions of these young men may have been entirely honerable, but it will take a terrible steetch of imagination to induce the should be punished in a manner that will teach them a lesson which it will take them a long time to droget.— Bourbon News.

The foregoing from its Paris con-temporary comes nearer the meat of the matter than anything THE LED-GER has seen on the subject.

The fact that two of these young men were sons of a prominent banker and grandsons of the man in whose nonor the College was named, and that all of them belonged to the "best families," makes their conduct the less excusable—unless, indeed, it is only necessary to belong to a good family to give a young man full li-cense to betray innocent girls.

By the way, what would these representative young men of Bowling Green "society" have to say if each had a sister at College in Kalamazoo, and if five young men of Kalamazoo "society" should be caught helping these sisters down a ladder to go with them to a midnight duck supper?
